Merchant given 'funny money'

BY TRACI BONNEY

When a Bay St. Louis merchant tried to make a bank deposit earlier this week, the bank discovered that one of the $100 bills in the deposit was counterfeit.

The branch manager of the bank that took the deposit confirmed that a teller did receive a fake C-note, but said he was not authorized to release any other information, since the Secret Service is investigating.

Bay Police Chief Frank McNeil said that he was alerting his detectives about the incident, and recommended that all local merchants be on the lookout for any counterfeits, both in the old $100 bills and the new currency now being released.

"Be especially alert about the new bills," McNeil said. "Until people get used to seeing them and knowing what they look like, people are going to try to scam the businesses with fakes."

The merchant who received the bill—who wished to remain anonymous -- said the bill looked like one of the $100 notes currently on the market, not like a new one.

Gail Linkins, resident agent in charge of the Secret Service in Mobile, Ala., said she could not comment on this particular incident since it is part of an ongoing investigation.

However, she did offer some tips to help business people deal with counterfeit money and those who would try to pass it.

"People should be aware of their money," she said. "If you suspect you have a counterfeit bill, compare that bill with a genuine one of the same denomination; try to compare a $100 bill to another one, not to a $50 or a $20."

Other features of genuine money include:

- 3-D, lifelike portraits;
- Clear, distinct sawtooth points on the Federal Reserve and Treasury seals;
- Distinctive, evenly-spaced serial numbers printed in the same ink color as the Treasury seal;
- Clear, unbroken fine lines in the bill's border;
- Paper that has no water-

Fugitive nabbed

BY ED LEPOMA

One of "America's Most Wanted," who escaped from the Hancock County jail last September, was recaptured without incident at a Slidell motel room on Monday, Memorial Day.

A Hancock County Sheriff's detective, a U.S. Marshal out of Biloxi and the Slidell Police Department apprehended the escaped fugitive after a six-hour stakeout climaxing when police surrounded his room, and telephoned him to urge that he surrender.

The fugitive, 37-year-old Anthony Frank McKinley of 5242 Bayou LaCroix Road, Bay St. Louis, had been made a trustee. Officers said he obtained a key leading to an area just outside the jail, then scaled a 20-foot high fence topped with barbed wire to escape last Sept. 10.

McKinley had been brought back to Hancock County from Parchman to await an appeal on his manslaughter conviction. He had been convicted in the shooting death of Darrell Robinson in a June 1993 confrontation at Washington and

Navy eyeing Hancock County for offices

BY ED LEPOMA

Three hundred to 350 high-paying government jobs may be coming to Hancock County.

District 4 Supervisor Steve Seymour revealed last week that the U.S. Defense Department is seeking to consolidate the Navy's Human Resources (personnel) operations now spread around four states, and Navy personnel have looked at office space that might be available at the Stennis Space Center or at the long-vacant Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant.

At Seymour's urging, supervisors passed a resolution urging the state's congressional delegation to use its clout to land the operation.

And, Seymour said, with U.S. Sen. Trent Lott or Thad Cochran trying for majority leader in the Senate, the chances were good for the county.

Seymour told fellow supervisors the Navy is looking for 65,000-square-feet of office space, and the Defense Department has allocated $8 million for the move and consolidation.

Although most of the personnel would be moved in from other states, Seymour said the economy would benefit immensely since "these are high-paying government jobs," and the workforce would need housing and would make other purchases in the area. He said other jobs, such as for janitorial services, would be created wherever the office is located.

U.S. Rep. Gene Taylor has consistently pushed the U.S. Army to turn over the vacant ammo plant to Hancock County for industrial development.

The Fifth District Democrat has formally asked the General Accounting Office to conduct an audit and investigation, claiming the Army has paid Mason

Caring for Katie update

BY TRACI BONNEY
 Four fund raisers later, the Caring for Katie Committee is starting to see just how much people do care.

Wendy Allard, publicity coordinator for the group, said, "The Caring for Katie Committee has been gratified by the response. We raised over $4,000, and 183 gave blood samples for the marrow donor program (May 5 at a dinner in Pass Christian).

"In addition, Beta Sigma Phi made 750 po-boys on May 8th, and the Knights of Columbus sold 275 fish dinners on May 17th."

The committee formed a few weeks ago to help the family of Katie Terrell, a two-year-old Pass Christian girl who was born with leukemia.

Katie, the youngest of three, has spent more than half her life in treatment for the potentially fatal blood disease.

"Katie is continuing her chemotherapy, but has avoided a relapse for now," Allard commented. "We are still waiting to see if any match was found from the blood tests."

Katie is the daughter of Kathy and James Terrell, and the granddaughter of Marie Steube and the late Johnny Steube. Her elder siblings, James and Meagan, both are students at St. Paul's Catholic School in Pass Christian.

The committee got a boost in its efforts from the Terrells' neighbors in the Pineville community, Allard said. They sold about 330 chicken dinners by donation last Sunday at the new West Harrison County Civic Center on Esplanade in Pass Christian.

Willie Lizana, one of the sale coordinators, said the dinner sale was very successful.

"The response was wonderful," she stated. "Since the dinners were sold by donation, I don't have an exact dollar figure, but the sale was a big success."

"Katie and her mother went to Jackson Wednesday for some treatments," Allard said. "We found out that a doctor has to request that the patient's name and medical information be run through the Bone Marrow Registry to see if there's a match, so hopefully her doctor in Jackson will do that this week and we may find out in the next week or so if there is a match."

Allard added that if there is no match at present, the Caring For Katie Committee is planning another bone marrow test drive, probably in June.

For more information, call Allard at 452-2453.

D'head, Pearlinton residents oppose proposed zoning plan

BY ED LEPOMA

The latest revisions to Hancock County's proposed comprehensive zoning ordinance have drawn the wrath of Diamondhead and Pearlinton residents.

About 100 people attended a public hearing Tuesday night at the Civic Center on Longfellow Drive. The meeting, presided over by the County Planning Commission and attended by four of five supervisors began about 35 minutes later than the planned 7 p.m. starting time, and lasted until about 10 p.m.

In four previous public hearings, a number of Diamondhead residents spoke in support of the principles of zoning, saying their area was protected by subdivision covenants, but they felt other county residents needed some form of zoning to keep unwanted creeping commercialism from devaluing their residential areas.

One of the staunchest supporters of zoning was Leila Thissell from Diamondhead, but Tuesday night she was fighting mad.

Thissell said she had just gotten back in town to learn that last week the planning commission had recommended that a 404-acre tract of land that sits south and east of the Diamondhead exit be rezoned to accommodate a $200 million gambling development proposed by Casino World.

Some Diamondhead residents are adamantly opposed to the project that would float two casino barges in the Bay of St. Louis, and construct hotels and other tourist-related attractions on 100 acres of mostly marshlands.

"I guess it depends on whose ox is being gored," said Thissell.

She called the planning commission's last-minute maneuvering "hanky-panky," and wanted to know if supervisors were going to amend the document without another public hearing.

"You're making enemies of those who were in support of the general concept of zoning," Thissell warned.

She said Diamondhead property owners have signed a petition requesting "an environmental impact study on the cumulative effects of gambling in the Bay of St. Louis," and are steadfast in their opposition to any casino that would impact Diamondhead.

"And, we'll do battle to the death to prevent it," she vowed.

John Scafile, attorney for the planning commission, told Thissell, "If there was any hanky-panky, you would not have heard about it" (the rezoning recommendation). He said supervisors will ultimately make the decision" on whether to rezone the area.

Scafile said zoning within the county has been debated and subjected to public hearings since 1991, and the county is still without a comprehensive law.

"At some point, the public hearing process has to end," he said.

Patrice St. Clair questioned why almost the entire area of Pearlinton was proposed R-3, which would allow for multifamily apartments and other high-density uses.

She said she moved to Pearlinton because of its rural setting, and advised supervisors to "Scrap this and start all over again."

St. Clair said, in three previous public hearings, she and other citizens told the planning commission the entire area of Pearlinton should be zoned A-1 General Agriculture, the designation given most of the other rural areas of the county.

Cornelius Ladner, a former school teacher and retired lawyer, said he owns 120 acres of land in Pearlinton, and has been trying to put some kind of development together on his property, but his land would not carry a commercial designation to allow the project.

Some opponents charged enactment of a zoning ordinance would ultimately raise a property owner's taxes, a charge denied by those who drafted the legislation.

Bill Hessell, who helped the South Mississippi Planning and Development Commission write the text and propose various use districts for the zoning document, said, "Zoning should have no effect on your property tax." He explained, "If you change the use of your property or make improvements, that would change the tax structure."

And, Gerald Gex, the attorney for the Board of Supervisors, told the audience the county tax assessor is not allowed to take into account zoning when levying tax assessments.

He explained that Hancock County property is now being ordered by the state to reappraise all real property, but residents would be notified by July of 1997, and any actual tax hike based on reappraisal wouldn't go into effect until 1998.

Tom Williams and Jerry Ladner, who formed a group called "Concerned Citizens for Good Government" and have been campaigning against a zoning ordinance, still questioned an attorney general's opinion which ruled the zoning question could not be put on a referendum.

Williams asked for a show of hands in support of a vote on the issue, and District 2 Supervisor Rocky Pullman raised his hand, along with several other citizens in the audience.

Ladner said he plans to take his fight to put zoning on the ballot all the way to the state Supreme Court.

To those citizens who spoke in favor of zoning and own a home in the unincorporated areas and plan to retire to Hancock County, Ladner said, "You should look what your coming into" (before you purchase).

"You can't turn the country into the city," he said.

Supervisors now have the option to pass, amend or table the zoning regulations or send the whole package back to the planning commission for more revision.

Before they were elected last November, they went on record saying they favored some kind of regulations, which would prevent junk yards or other unwanted uses from infringing on neighborhoods.

Board President Philip Moran represented supervisors at a school awards night Tuesday, and did not attend the hearing.

Jeff Loftus, on the staff of the Gulf Regional Planning Commission, kept a tally at the meeting, and said 72 people signed comment forms.

On those forms, Loftus said 27 people supported zoning, 26 were against, and 19 had no comment for or against.

Supervisors appear anxious to accomodate D'head casino

BY ED LEPOMA

At least four Hancock County supervisors seem anxious to accommodate a casino planned off the Diamondhead exit of Interstate 10.

The Hancock County Planning Commission told supervisors last week it would recommend amending the county's not-yet-adopted proposed comprehensive zoning ordinance and create a special use district for Casino World's development near Diamondhead.

Supervisors voted 4-1 to accept the recommendation as part of the board's meeting minutes, but they didn't immediately concur by resolution. District 3 Supervisor Lisa Cowan, whose district includes the largely residential Diamondhead area, voted against.

Planning Commission attorney John Scafile told supervisors the 404-acre tract that sits south and east of the Diamondhead exit on Interstate 10 was incorrectly zoned for residential and agriculture purposes on the original map presented to them.

He said the commission received a request from the Mississippi Gaming Corporation, the proposed developers, to zone their property as C-2 and as a Waterfront/Casino special use district.

In view of the fact that developers have been working on the project for the last two years, and recently entered into a bottomlands lease with the county Port and Harbor Commission, Scafile said the planning commission approved the change with one provision.

Scafile said if the proposed development doesn't begin within a year, the site would revert back to its original zoning.

Scafile said the county's proposed zoning ordinance, will still require Casino World to submit a site plan and a master plan to the commission for final approval.

As proposed, Casino World plans a $200 million project to include two floating casino barges in the Bay of St. Louis, a 450-room hotel, a park for recreational vehicles, retail shops, restaurants and a nine-hole golf course.

The gaming commission has endorsed the site as a legal one under state laws, but the developer still needs approval from the state departments of Marine Resources and Environmental Quality, and from the U.S. Corps of Engineers.

Charles "Kip" Reddien, Casino World's chief executive officer, said an initial master plan has already been presented to the planning commission, and "we are working our way through DEQ" and the other agencies involved.

He said "there might be some changes to the master plan" recommended by the individual agencies.

Some of the concerns raised by the Corps of Engineers were that marshlands would be disturbed by construction. Casino World has agreed to build from the west toward the east, and avoid putting heavy equipment in sensitive areas. It will also elevate roadways over the property, and says all but 100 acres of the 400-plus acre tract will be left in its pristine state.

A citizens group, calling itself Protect Diamondhead's Quality, is expected to mount opposition to the Casino World project, and another $150-million hotel-gambling complex planned by Circus Circus off the Kiln-DeLisle exit of I-10.

How to beat heat fatigue

Those who love outdoor exercise during summer know that heat and humidity can reduce energy levels. A Mississippi State University specialist in physical education and recreation says there are ways to fight off fatigue caused by the heat.

"Because heat adds stress to the body, those who exercise outdoors should allow themselves plenty of time to get acclimated," assistant professor Petra Schuler advises. "It takes 10 to 14 days to adjust to the heat."

She offers some suggestions for making the most of exercise when the weather is hot.

Choose a cooler time of day. Exercise during early mornings and late evenings.

Drink plenty of fluids. "Water is the best thing to drink because it's absorbed quickly, but if your workouts are long and intense, sport drinks are helpful," she says.

Drink water gradually before workouts. During workouts, drink one cup of water for every 10 minutes of exercise.

Watch what you eat. The key to fighting fatigue is eating a well-balanced diet. If you're unsure about consuming a balanced diet, take multivitamins.

Concert scheduled

The public is invited to attend a concert scheduled at 6:30 p.m. Saturday at Mt. Chapel Baptist Church, 721 Herlihy St. in Waveland.

According to Ethel Harrington, "Heavenly Voices from Long Beach" will be featured. The choir, under the direction of Edna and Ken Braxton, has toured the southeastern United States, and is composed of singers ranging in ages from five to 21.

Auxiliary 139 to mark Poppy Day Saturday

The Clement R. Bontemps American Legion Auxiliary Unit 139 will have representatives distributing poppies at Jitney Jungle, Winn-Dixie, Sav-A-Center and Walmart.

"CUEVAS" QUOTES

By Ellis C. Cuevas

I received a letter from a Hancock North Central sixth grader on how nice the people of Bay St. Louis were on a recent class visit.

The tour included the Hancock County Courthouse, Tax Office, Hancock County Historical Society, Sea Coast Echo office, Bay St. Louis City Hall, Criminal Justice Facility and Bay St. Louis Police Department.

It is an annual event sponsored for sixth graders by the Mississippi Coast Crime Commission's "Too Good For Drugs" program. Kathleen Kemp is the organizer and the sixth graders really enjoy the outing.

Here is what the letter said:

"To the people of Bay St. Louis.

"I really enjoyed the field trip. I enjoyed seeing all the places and people. I enjoyed all the places equally.

"I learned a lot from the talks you gave me. I appreciate the time you spent with me and thank you very much."

Sincerely, Shannon O'Flynn.

I feel the field trips are great for youngsters and they are educational, too.

Myself, I look forward each year to the visits at our office by the Hancock North Central students.

Thanks to Shannon for taking the time to drop us a line.

In Sunday's column I commented how we had a lack of moisture for our gardens and lawns.

It seems too many people apparently did rain dances and now some are looking for ways the shut the rain down.

Anyway, with Tuesday night's rains I sure won't have to water anything in my yard for a week or so.

In reviewing news reports I noted Biloxi really took a battering from the thunderstorms Tuesday night.

We were probably just on the edge of the thunderstorms, yet we really got our share of water.

Richard Pate, Hancock County Fire Marshal, reported the county received between 5 and 8 inches during a 12-hour period.

The gauge at the Civil Defense office overflowed at 5 inches, Pate said, and computer reports showed over 8 inches fell Tuesday night.

Several area streets had to be blocked to traffic because of water bridging the road.

City and county crews were busy Wednesday morning trying to speed water flow in many areas.

CD weather information indicated we were to receive more thunderstorms during the day and night on Wednesday.

For sure rain was needed, as some coastal residents were even losing water to their homes because of their wells drying up.

Anyway, Doc, I think your rain request has answered.

Parents are seeking projects for their children in preschool through eighth grade may consider the Hancock County Library System's summer reading program.

Super Sports Summer is the theme this year. Pre-registration will run through Monday, June 3, with the programs starting on June 4 and going through July 11.

The reading program will be at the main library as well as the branches.

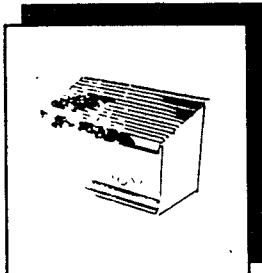

Our library system has a host of books awaiting youngsters to read.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Waveland's new fishing pond

Dear Editor,

After every heavy rain, Waveland has a new fishing pond — it's Tide and Water streets, appropriately named.

The volume of water that is trapped even has motorists acting as "boat captains," negotiating high water.

If one looks closely, one will observe crayfish, tadpoles and large bullfrogs in this pond — no redfish as of this writing, but given time they could realize there is bait in this pond.

Our property has been in the family since 1939 — the streets are rare, "one" lane neglected streets.

Every administration has known about and ignored the drainage problem. Yet the residents and non-residents pay their fair share of taxes.

It's time for these people to get their fair share of city maintenance.

We'd rather fish in our bayous, rivers and lakes — not on Tide and Water streets.

Respectfully,
Hal Schumann
Waveland

Old photo brings memories to Bay St. Louis resident

Dear Editor,

Your May 9 issue included a picture of the Sanitary Bakery softball players of 1939.

My dad was Charlie Schneider, standing on the right. He passed away in 1960, and was married to Virginia LaFontaine, who has also since passed away.

The story I remember is: my dad needed a job, and Mr. Vassalli needed a ball player. Many years later, my dad would proudly show us around the bakery on Washington Street.

It seems that picture had always been in our life, now lost or misplaced; its sight brought a rush of memories.

Every evening I would go to the depot to meet the Hummingbird on my bike to pick up my dad.

On the way, I'd pass Hobb's Grocery, Ladner's, Mr. Wilmer's, Pitalo's, Mrs. Eunice Boudin rocking on her porch and Bobby selling snowballs in the backyard.

I remember the old ice house where my uncles would put ice on the bumper of their car till we got it home to the ice box, surprise picnics at Jackson Ridge with all the Ladners, and soft crabbing with my dad at the end of Washington Street, past the Star Theater, and if we were lucky, we'd share a frozen Milky Way from Mr. Seller's shop.

There are thousands of memories. Thank you for allowing me to relive some of them.

A proud daughter,
Charlene Schneider

Things every veteran should know

Apprenticeship and on-the-job training

Veterans, dependants, members of the National Guard and Reserve, have you considered apprenticeship training or on-the-job training? You may be eligible to receive a monthly benefit check from the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs.

If you have questions concerning your eligibility for educational benefits, contact the Veterans Affairs Regional Office at 1-800-827-1000.

What is on-the-job training?

On-the-job training (OJT) is training one would receive while actually performing a job and earning wages, as well as receiving GI Bill benefits.

OJT programs are normally six months to two years in length. Starting wages paid must equal 50 percent of the wages for the job for which the training is being provided.

At least one wage increase has to be given prior to receiving the fully trained rate. This increase must be given within one month of being fully trained and must equal 85 percent of the fully trained rate.

Some examples of OJT programs are: welder, painter, cook, pressman, auto mechanic and State Police.

What is apprenticeship training?

Apprenticeship training is on-the-job training coupled with theoretical related instruction.

Apprenticeship training programs are normally two to five years in length. Although program registration with the Department of Labor/Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training is not mandatory for veterans benefits, it is recommended.

The DOL/BAT has a listing of more than 800 approved apprenticeship training programs. Some examples of currently approved apprenticeship programs are: carpenter, electrician, brick layer, asbestos worker, plumber, iron worker, machinist, roofer, toolmaker, and maintenance mechanic.

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

Lott-Cochran rivalry mild compared to others from state

Poetically, there's an historic parallel to the Lott-Cochran Senate GOP leadership contest which occurred 59 years ago. It involved two Mississippi Democratic senators on opposite sides of a race for Democratic Majority Leader.

The two Mississippi Democrats were Sen. Pat Harrison and Sen. Theodore G. (The Man) Bilbo. Harrison and Bilbo were not running against each other for the Senate Democratic Leader's job. However, Harrison, who had been chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee, was running.

When the Democratic Leader, Arkansas Sen. Joe Robinson, a close ally of President Roosevelt, died in July 1937, Harrison was considered the likely heir to the job.

But Roosevelt, who played U.S. Senators like a violin in those days, decided he wanted Kentucky Sen. Alben Barkley as party leader.

Although Harrison had been a strong backer of the New Deal and instrumental in passing Social Security, he had begun to drift away from Roosevelt.

The contest between Harrison and Barkley narrowed down to an apparent tie with each claiming enough votes to win a majority of the 75 Democratic senators. Barkley's managers boasted of having 40 votes while Harrison's backers claimed a sure 38.

Obviously one had to be wrong since the total of votes claimed added up to more than a majority.

Enter Bilbo, the elfin Mississippi political warrior known for carrying on running feuds with various state pols of those days. One of those feuds was with Harrison, the senior Senator from Mississippi. They were reported to have not spoken to each other since Bilbo was elected to his seat two years before.

Before the Senate Democratic Caucus met, Harrison was not counting on Bilbo's vote. However, his manager, Sen. Jimmy Byrnes of South Carolina, went to Bilbo and asked him to consider voting for his Mississippi colleague. Bilbo said he would if Harrison asked him to.

As recounted in several printed versions, the latest being a 1978 volume on Harrison's career by Martha H. Swain for the University Press of Mississippi, Harrison responded: "Tell the s--- I wouldn't speak to him even if it meant the presidency of the United States."

Bilbo was claiming to others that he had pledged his vote to Barkley long before the contest with Harrison arose.

At any rate, when the votes were counted for Democratic Leader, Harrison lost by one vote. Afterward, Bilbo boasted he cast the one decisive vote than cost Harrison the job.

In the aftermath, others, especially Washington columnist Drew Pearson, said that the crucial vote came from a Utah senator who became peeved by Harrison's belated intentions of remaining as Senate Finance Chairman if he was elected leader. The Utah senator wanted the Finance job.

One senator known to have been switched at the last minute to Barkley by FDR was William Dieterich of Illinois. He informed Harrison an hour before the vote that he had to go back on his pledge after getting heavy pressure from Chicago Democratic boss Edward Kelly, who admitted getting heat from the White House.

Harrison thought he had the votes to win even with Dieterich's defection. One vote Roosevelt failed to switch was that of Sen. Harry Truman of Missouri.

Although Truman was thought to be subservient to Kansas City Democratic boss Tom Pendergast, he stayed hitched to Harrison and sent word to FDR that he resented being "treated like an office boy."

Bilbo enjoyed his role in the whole affair, claiming his revenge against Harrison was the sweetest of his long, combative career. But that was typical of Mississippi politics in that era, when political feuds were commonplace.

The rivalry between Lott and Cochran is mild by comparison. Will it remain that way after the contest is over?

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

A Weekly Editorial
From Mississippi Economic Council

School's out. In some ways it's out in more ways than we realize.

Mississippi spent a record $1.7 billion on public education in 1995, but functional literacy examination test scores dropped, and nearly 40 percent of kids who start first grade never graduate.

What's the problem? Unfortunately there's no single, easy answer. But one thing is certain — the solution isn't hurling additional tax dollars at a sick system. That's the same as throwing spaghetti at a wall and hoping some of it will stick.

The problem is worse than statistics indicate. Mississippi has some excellent schools and dedicated teachers. Buildings and programs in some districts are top-notch. But, pockets of despair offset the good, and this means the charts and graphs which we use to measure the whole are skewed.

We're turning out some bright students, and at the same time we're releasing a stream of barely literates who are unprepared to face the high-tech demands of today's workplace.

Early revenue forecasts indicate the legislature may have about $100 million in new money available in the 1997 session. There are already cries to "give it to education" or "give all teachers a raise."

But an across-the-board teacher pay raise won't do a single thing for a bored kid as a worn-out desk marking time in a school that has barely enough books and where teachers are reluctant to require workbooks because students are often too poor to afford them.

And, would the number of English, science, math and reading teachers increase if the legislature dumped truckloads of money and washed its hands of the problem? Experience tells us not.

Mississippi has increased public education spending half a billion dollars in just five years, but the number of core-subject teachers has decreased. Yet the number of public education employees has increased.

This is happening in a system that actually has fewer students now than five years ago.

So, who has the answer? Let's ask the state's best and brightest STAR teachers.

Lack of parental interest and lack of discipline — both related to the home — are cited as the fundamental problems in education today.

"The hardest part of teaching today is dealing with discipline," one teacher said. "Many students' problems can be traced back to the home."

On the subject of teacher pay: "Increase requirements and increase compensation," one said. "Reward excellence in teaching the same way industry does."

Mississippi will be permanently assigned to the 50th rung on the per capita income ladder unless we take some tough stances.

It's time to stand firm and say "no" to those who would take the easy way and apply salve to their consciences by handing over cash rather than confronting the problem.

Muths was promoted to trust officer in Hancock Bank's Trust Department. Joining the bank

Business executives gain confidence

Mississippi business executives started off the new year with increased confidence.

The latest survey of business executive confidence, conducted during March and April and representing a three-month period ending in March, rose to 57 from the quarter-ago level of 56. For comparison purposes, the U.S. business confidence level was down over the period to 49 from a level of 52.

The slight rise in Mississippi business executive confidence was supported by increased optimism in their own industry conditions. Of the executives surveyed, 35.6 percent believed their own industry business conditions will be better six months from now than they are at present, while 33.3 percent answered in this manner last quarter.

Also, 28.8 percent believe business conditions are better now in their industry than they were six months ago, while 28.3 percent answered that way last quarter. The differences in attitudes in this quarter over last quarter appear small; however, they were large enough to bring the index up one point.

Some business executives were less optimistic in Mississippi business conditions as a whole. Of particular interest were manufacturing and financial executives.

Manufacturing executives responded less optimistically in the first quarter of 1996 than they did a quarter ago. They believe business conditions at home are worsening as relocation to foreign markets becomes more favorable. Evidence is seen in ever decreasing levels of manufacturing employment across the state.

On the other hand, financial executives were more optimistic in the first quarter of 1996. Their attitudes were shaped at a time of year when interest rates were lower and were expected to remain stable or possibly decline further. Lower interest rates would increase business activity for the financial sector.

Of the 73 firms responding to the survey, 39.7 percent indicated they would increase

BellSouth Pioneers meet on Coast

The Broadwater Beach Resort will be the setting for the annual Assembly of the BellSouth Pioneers May 31-June 2.

The meeting of the Mississippi Chapter of the world's largest industry-related volunteer organization will focus on BellSouth's sponsorship of the 1996 Summer Olympics in Atlanta through community service projects.

"Challenge to the Limit: Let the Games Begin" will be the theme for activities ranging from a three-minute relay for retired "Life Members" to competitive games for physically and mentally challenged individuals Saturday, June 1.

The games will mark the conclusion of a statewide Olympic Relay which has visited seven schools across Mississippi, winding up with an award ceremony Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m. All students who participated in the games across the state received Olympic-style medals.

Twenty-three special athletes from Hancock, Harrison, Stone and Pearl River counties will compete in activities such as ring-toss, volleyball and egg-carrying, and also will be awarded medals. The events will end with an ice cream social for athletes and Pioneers.

At 2 p.m. Saturday, the Pioneers will present a computer to the Boys and Girls Clubs of the Gulf Coast. The computer will serve as a host terminal for the Boys and Girls Clubs' 13 computers located at the main facility on Hwy. 90 in Biloxi.

The computer will be a communications center and Internet access site, said Bob Griffin of the Boys and Girls Clubs.

"An additional use of the computer will be to supply club youth with myriad educational opportunities for learning and tutorials, based on a series of educational software and openness to the world of cyberspace," he said.

Other activities of the weekend will be a golf tournament at the Sunkist Country Club, hobby exhibits, a lip sync competition, a Life Member breakfast and the Saturday evening climax of the Assembly, "A Night With the Greek Gods."

More than 5,000 active and retired BellSouth employees in Mississippi belong to the Pioneers.

Jobless rate unchanged

Mississippi's jobless rate remained steady at 5.9 percent from March to April, but the labor force grew by 8,200 workers, according to a report from the Mississippi Employment Security Commission.

Some 7,700 of these additional workers were employed with only 500 new unemployed. Agricultural workers hired from spring planting accounted for nearly half the increase.

The April 1996 rate was 0.3 percent higher than the 5.6 percent rate reported for April 1995. Job losses in goods producing industries accounted for most of the increase in unemployment over the year.

Continuing a trend, Mississippi's civilian labor force also grew at a healthy pace since last year.

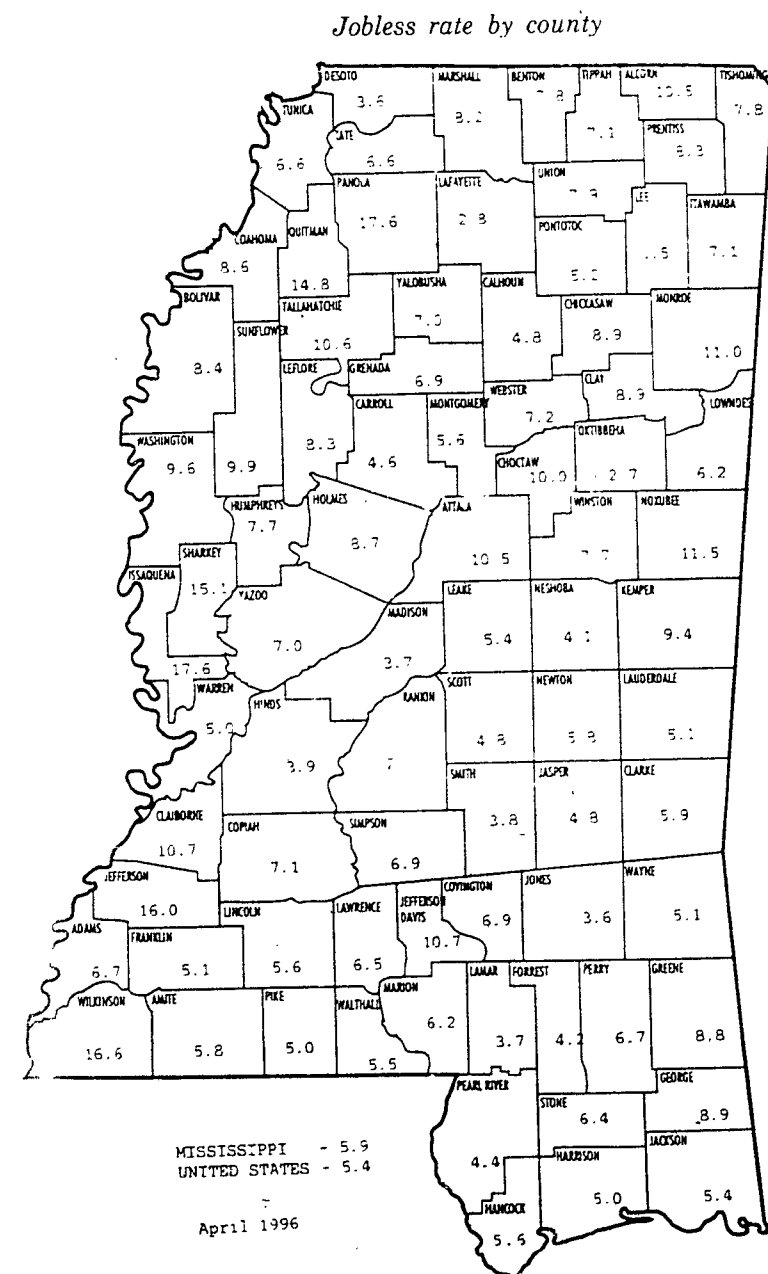

"There are 21,200 more people in the workforce now than in April 1995, for a total of 1,262,400," said Raiford Crews, MESCC chief of labor market information. Increases in service producing jobs and farm jobs more than offset losses of 11,300 in goods producing jobs. "However," Crews said, "persons displaced in goods producing jobs are not necessarily matched to openings which occur in other industries."

Mississippi employers provided 1.08 million non-farm jobs in April, up 6,100 from March and 8,100 from April 1995.

"Even though goods producing jobs were 11,300 below one year ago, they were up 2,600 from March," Crews noted. "This seems to be an indication that the job losses suffered because of downsizing are beginning to reverse."

Service producing industries continue record-setting growth, with 19,400 new jobs over the year and 3,500 new openings since March. The biggest annual gainers were trade, up 3,800 jobs; services, up 9,900; and government, up 7,400. Fifty-five percent of the new government jobs were in education. Of the nearly 10,000 new jobs in services, 4,500 were in amusement industries, which includes casinos.

Labor market analysts anticipate continuing growth with better performance in most all industries. In May and June, however, jobless rates will probably increase as students flood the job market.

Full summer ahead at USMGC

The University of Southern Mississippi Gulf Coast campuses have planned a full summer of credit and non-credit programming with some fun thrown in on the side.

Courses of all types are available through USMGC's academic programs at Gulf Park, Keesler Center and Jackson County USM Center — as well as at the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory in Ocean Springs and the J.L. Scott Marine Education Center and Aquarium in Biloxi.

Here's a look at what's going on this summer:

• Academic classes at USMGC's Gulf Park/Keesler/Jackson County campuses begin June 3. Last-call registration is today, but late registration continues throughout the first week of the summer term. The second summer school term begins July 3 and summer graduation — in conjunction with USM Hattiesburg — is planned for August 9, 6:30 p.m. in Reed Green Coliseum.

• This is the first summer of USMGC's new "Test Drive a Degree" program, a way for those with college credit but no degree to try classes again. For students who have been out of college at least three years, who have a minimum of 54 college credit hours and a C average, the program offers a chance to take one course free.

Sheila White, USMGC academic support and public relations specialist, said so far about 40 adult students have signed up to take a test drive course this summer. Registration deadline for the program is today. A Test Drive Support Session is planned for Saturday.

• A full slate of credit and non-credit classes featuring everything from gardening to computer skills training to business specialty areas is available this summer through USMGC's Division of Continuing Education. Classes will be available at Gulf Park in Long Beach and at the USM Center in Jackson County. A free catalog containing a full slate of planned courses, dates, places, times and tuition is available.

• Memberships are available for the USMGC Pool and Tennis Club on the Gulf Park campus. Membership provides unrestricted use of the pool during open hours, tennis court privileges, early registration, and discounts on lessons and club use for private parties.

• An expanded schedule for USMGC's School of Human Performance and Recreation and the Division of Continuing Education mean plenty of recreational credit and non-credit classes this summer. Credit courses include offerings like coaching tennis, sports administration, legal and ethical aspects of sports, coaching basketball, lifeguard training and coaching volleyball.

USMGC's non-credit recreation program has been expanded to add adult tennis lessons to an already full schedule of junior tennis classes. Newly-designed tennis lessons, clinics and activities for adult and junior players; swimming lessons for adults and juniors; and beach volleyball camps also are planned.

Meanwhile, at GCRL, the first term for courses this summer began May 27 and includes five marine education-related courses as well as the opportunity for individualized study in specific marine programs available through GCRL. The second term begins July 1, with four marine courses available.

• At MEC&A, Project Marine Discovery Sea Camps kick off June 3 and begin a summer of fun and learning for anyone in the 6-14 age group. Each Sea Camp is one week long, day-camp only and provides youngsters a chance to go on field excursions and trips as well as learn in a laboratory setting.

Early Childhood Sea Camps for 4- and 5-year-olds offer younger children a half-day sea camp experience. Seven sessions are planned.

• The Loggerhead Club, a new educational program initiated this spring for children ages 6-12 at MEC&A, now boasts 77 members and is looking for even more. The next meeting is June 8, 1-3:30 p.m. At that meeting, Kim Damon, an MEC&A marine education specialist, will present a program on sharks. Arts and crafts and other activities also are planned.

• The 1996 Operation Pathfinder program, aimed at providing an education in oceanography and coastal processes for elementary and middle school teachers, will be held July 14-26 at GCRL. The intensive, two-week course provides teachers with a complete experience — including knowledge, teaching techniques, resource materials, activities and hands-on experiences they can take back to the classroom.

For information on any academic courses available at GCRL, call the GCRL admissions office at (601) 875-2244. Information on Sea Camps, the Loggerhead Club and 1996 Operation Pathfinder programs can be obtained from MEC&A by calling (601) 374-5550.

marks and has tiny red and blue fibers embedded in it.

According to a Secret Service brochure, some design features are not a good indicator of whether or not the currency is real, because those features vary from one series year to another.

For instance, the signature of the Secretary of the Treasury or of the Treasurer of the United States varies when there is a change in personnel in those positions.

Other variations include a change in the Treasury seal in 1966 and later series; the inclusion of the motto "In God We Trust" in series from 1963B to present; a change in the Federal Reserve regional seal on the currency's back in notes from 1950 and later; and a small variation in Andrew Jackson's portrait on $20 bills from the 1934 and 1950 series years — in those two years, one more finger is showing than on notes of other years.

One form of counterfeiting involves making the bills on office copier machines, which produces black-and-white, color or monochromatic counterfeits that, when examined under a magnifying glass, have a pebbly, glittery appearance and fine, pebble-like particles of toner that appear at random across the surface of the paper.

Another method is to glue numerals from high denomination bills to the corners of a note of lower denomination. This can be detected by comparing the numerals in the corners to the denomination written out at the bottom of the note (front and back) and through the Treasury seal.

Linkins said another indicator of a fake bill is the thickness. "Some counterfeit bills feel thicker," she explained. "Some that we've gotten in from the Mississippi Gulf Coast area have actually been two sheets of copier paper glued together with a strip in the middle."

Linkins said merchants can help protect themselves by asking for a lower denomination bill when a large bill is presented for a small purchase.

"Typically, the person's goal is to get as much change as possible, so they buy something little with a big bill," she said, "unless, of course, they really want that blouse they're buying. But usually, they're going for the change."

She added, "If you think you have received a counterfeit bill, don't return it to the customer. We need it for evidence."

"We also need a description of the person who gave you the bill and the purchase he or she made. Sometimes when we arrest the person, we can find the item purchased."

"Also, without putting yourself in jeopardy, try to get a tag number and vehicle identification, as well as a description of any person he or she may be shopping with. Often, we can also arrest an accomplice if we have a description."

Linkins said a person who suspects he or she has been given a counterfeit bill should immediately call the local police. "They are our first line of defense in investigating the incident," she stated.

The recipient of the suspicious bill may also call the Secret Service office in Mobile at (334) 441-5851, Linkins added.

The bill should be initialed and dated with the recipient's initials on a blank portion of the suspect note, then put into an envelope or other protective covering and given only to a properly identified police officer or U.S. Secret Service agent, she concluded.

McKinley was featured three times on the popular "America's Most Wanted," and the Hancock County investigator in charge of the search gave the television show credit for alerting the public to be on the lookout for the fugitive.

Investigator Matt Karl said he and U.S. Marshal Roger Caplinger spent the last six months tracking McKinley throughout the southeastern United States.

Karl said after McKinley's final appearance on the television show, a caller alerted police that he had seen the subject in the Slidell area.

Slidell police Capt. Sig Swenson staked out the area with Karl and Caplinger, as police surrounded the motel.

Swenson observed that McKinley had bleached his hair, had covered his pronouncing tattoo with a band-aid and wore clothes inappropriate for the weather conditions in attempts to conceal his identity. He had also lost between 45 and 50 pounds while on the run, Karl said.

Swenson said he positioned himself in a place where he could determine what room the suspect entered, called Slidell officers to surround the area, and then called McKinley's room with his cellular phone.

When McKinley answered, Swenson told him that it was pointless to resist arrest, and that he should remove his shirt so that officers outside could see that he was unarmed.

He also told McKinley to exit the room with his hands raised so he could be taken into custody.

Karl said McKinley was arrested without incident, and there were no weapons in his motel room.

Sheriff Ronnie Peterson said McKinley was charged as a fugitive and was returned to the Hancock County jail on Tuesday after an extradition hearing in Slidell.

Peterson said he is awaiting orders to transport McKinley back to the Mississippi State Penitentiary at Parchman.

been tabled by the former board of supervisors and once by the new board because residents of Pearlinton didn't want to be included.

District Attorney J.P. Compretta told supervisors, in order to apply for the funds from the Farmers Home Administration, the board had to act on the annexation, and to amend the plan now to exclude Pearlinton would delay the application process.

Supervisors voted 4-1, with District 2 Supervisor Rocky Pullman voting against. Pullman said he was not against the project, but cast the dissenting vote because Pearlinton residents, whom he represents, have indicated they "wanted to do their own thing."

Pullman said Pearlinton residents might soon ask supervisors for $25,000 to study options for installing a sewerage system in their town. An Attorney General's ruling, would be needed on whether supervisors could make the donation.

District 1 Supervisor Lyonie "Jeep" Ladner asked district engineer Duke Levy if it was too late to include Bayside Park in the annexation effort.

Levy said, "Yes, it would delay the application three to six months" because preliminary engineering work had to be included with the application.

He promised Ladner that Bayside Park would be included in the next application for funds.

Originally, the application request was for $10 million, and was to include Pearlinton, but the deadline for applying passed while the old board and new board listened to objections from Pearlinton residents, and tabled any action.

Now, if funding is approved, the earliest construction would start would be April of 1997, with completion set a year later.

The Shoreline Park extension would add about 1,200 residents south of Interstate 10 and on both sides of Hwy. 603 to the system, more than doubling the present customer base.

Face painting (above) was one of the more popular attractions at the St. Clair Festival, held Friday through Sunday. Also, the many rides available were popular with the younger set (right). Some the parents even got into the spirit, tagging along with their youngsters on some of the rides (below). The festival flourished under blues skies, albeit warm temperatures.

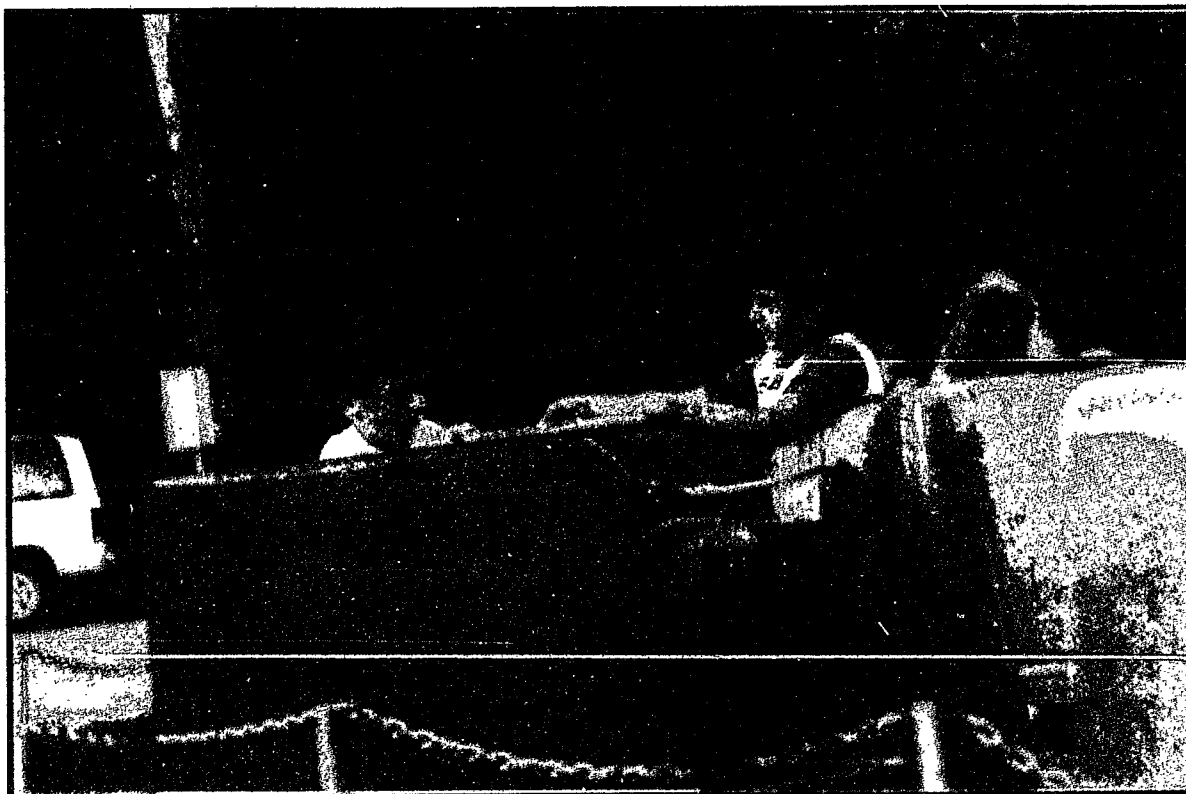

The Clement R. Bontemps American Legion Post 139 of Bay St. Louis held a solemn graveside service at St. Mary's Cemetery.

BETWEEN THE LINES

By Richard Meek

A new beginning at Bay High

Bill Thomas bubbles with the exuberance one would expect of a coach just handed the reins to his own program for the first time.

But to expect Thomas to turn Bay High around in a short period of time would be akin to asking Thomas faces an arduous task in rebuilding a Tiger program that has seen fallen on hard times. Bay High's senior-laden team of a year ago entered the season with optimism, but struggled to a 3-6 record.

Graduation has gutted the offensive and defensive lines, and claimed the Tigers' quarterback and top running back.

Thomas faces massive challenges in rebuilding the Tiger program, but the most critical are molding a young team short on size and experience into a competitive unit, and rekindling the spark in Tiger fans. A year ago, one would be apt to find a larger crowd at an afternoon tea than at a Bay High football game.

While it is true fans cannot take the field or call plays, apathy is a contributing factor in the overall degeneration of a program. Unfortunately, apathy was not in short supply last year as the Tigers' hopes of a winning season slipped away.

Fortunately, Thomas has served his apprenticeship in several successful programs. He has served as an assistant at Moss Point and Pascagoula high schools, both perennial playoff contenders. Thomas also served as a graduate assistant under Rocky Felker at Mississippi State, and has coached under several different offensive philosophies.

He knows the blueprint for success.

"The one thing I've learned is that all winning programs have a plan," Thomas said. "They stick to the plan and engrain it in the kids. It teaches the kids to be successful in life, because not many kids make a living playing football on Sunday."

The offensive-minded Thomas recognizes Bay High's limitations. Because of a lack of size, Thomas said he will retain the Wing-T offense, a scheme that relies on quickness and deception for success, not brute strength.

Tank Williams, a spot player at quarterback a year ago, is expected to inherit the position full-time. James Benton is scheduled to be the feature back.

"We will use a lot of misdirection," Thomas said. "Our passing will come off of the run."

Defensively, Thomas said his youngsters' enthusiasm may be their biggest assets.

"We have a lot of young fellows, but that is a good problem to have," Thomas said. "They fly to the football. Enthusiasm can often make up for a lack of talent."

Thomas met with his troops on Wednesday morning, and outlined a summer program that includes intense weight training.

"We have to get the kids strong," he said.

He said his goal is to instill "structure and discipline" into the program. Thomas said early evaluations have left him satisfied with the Tigers' talent level.

"Down the road, we have the chance to be a pretty good team," he said. "I'm chomping at the bit. I can't wait to get started."

The first game is only 90 days away.

Orlando's playoff exit certainly came as no surprise to readers of this column. But the ease in which the Magic were ousted was stunning. The collective mental weakness of the Magic makes the team playoff pretenders rather than the championship contenders that is expected of them.

Orlando possesses an awesome array of talent, with arguably two of the game's best players in Shaquille O'Neal and Kenny Hardaway. But while the Magic players were seeking to pad their individual numbers in the playoffs, the Bulls had checked their egos at the gate and advanced to the finals as a team, a concept Orlando has yet to grasp.

The Magic was once billed as the NBA's future dynasty. But it may have come to an end before a championship banner found its way to the Magic Kingdom.

O'Neal is a free agent and is apparently trying a Lakers uniform on for size. A manchild in size 20-plus sneakers, the marketable O'Neal is intent on pursuing a movie career, and where better to chase that dream than Hollywood?

Many other Magic players may be taking their talents elsewhere, once again leaving Mickey and Minnie as Orlando's biggest draws.

The tragedy of O'Neal possibly signing with the Lakers is Magic Johnson's retirement. The tremendously talented but still maturing O'Neal could learn the commitment it takes to wear a championship ring.

Winning does not come cheaply, but even with their deep wallets, it appears to be a price O'Neal and his Magic Kingdom teammates are unwilling to pay.

John Leonard Strauser (seated) of Bay St. Louis has signed a grant-in-aid scholarship with the Pearl River Community College tennis team. PRCC tennis coach Dr. Chris Lundy (standing) said the Bay High men's doubles player earned two tennis letters for Coach Ann Lathrop, as well as two letters in football. Strauser was also a hurdler and pole vaulter for the Bay High track team. He is a member of the Phi Theta Kappa honor society and a dean's list scholar. (PRCC photo)

There's Really No Such Thing As A "Slipped Disc"

The correct scientific term is herniated nucleus pulposus, but most people use the expression "slipped disc" when referring to a spinal disc problem. Would you believe that there is no such thing as a "slipped disc"? The pads or cartilage material (the disc) between the vertebra actually does not slip at all, what really happens is the vertebra itself becomes misaligned and the disc protrudes and presses on the spinal cord or nerves. This produces much pain, sometimes so intense it disables its victim.

Normally, spinal discs perform their duties perfectly for a lifetime, but occasionally they herniate (protrude) as the result of a fall, an auto accident, whiplash, strain from lifting improperly or too much, a blow to the neck or the back area. Even repeated sitting or standing in a stressful way can bring on disc problems.

Then there are disc problems that develop slowly through disc degeneration and thinning, a process that is so gradual over the years that it can go unnoticed until it demands attention.

Treatment for a disc problem must be tailored to the specific cause. A thorough chiropractic examination can determine whether the pain is caused by disc failure, vertebral misalignments, or other problems.

When acute analysis of this type of problem locates the specific cause, expertise beyond the scope of the average medical doctor is required to return the vertebrae to their proper alignment. Often an adjustment from a competent Doctor of Chiropractic can relieve the pain and deal with the problem itself.

Back pain calls for a chiropractic examination without delay. Many severe back problems get that way through early neglect. If you believe you have a disc problem, for your own health's sake, try chiropractic first. Many, many people have been helped without dangerous drugs and risky surgery.

Marine Fisheries proposes new regulations for TEDs

Special to the Echo
The National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS) is proposing new Turtle Exclusion Device (TED) requirements, which include using only top-opening hard TEDs in areas where high levels of shrimp effort and sea turtle abundance are expected.

The proposed changes would require:

- Disallowing use of all soft TEDs effective December 31, 1996.

- Use of NMFS-approved hard TEDs in try nets with a minimum length greater than 20 feet or a mesh greater than 10 feet by December 31, 1996.

- Establishing Shrimp Harvest Area SFSTCAs in the northwestern Gulf of Mexico from waters out to 10 nautical miles along the coasts of Louisiana and Texas from the Mississippi River South Pass to the U.S.-Mexican border, and in the Atlantic inshore and offshore waters out to 10 nautical miles from the Georgia-Florida border to the North Carolina-Carolina border.

- Within the SFSTCAs, disallowing use of all soft TEDs, and using the new try net restrictions, and prohibiting the use of bottom-opening hard TEDs effective 30 days after publication of the final rule.

Copies of the proposed rule can be obtained by contacting the Protect Species Branch at (813) 570-5312. Comments on the proposed rule must be submitted before June 10, 1996, to the Chief, Endangered Species Division, Office of Protected Resources, NMFS, 1315 East-West Highway, Silver Spring, MD 20910.

NEW LAW ELIMINATES VHF RADIO FEE — Recently passed legislation that overhauls the nation's telecommunications law includes the elimination of the $75 10-year fee for VHF radio licenses used on recreational boats.

The change was prompted by concern that recreational boaters might be using this vital piece of safety equipment because they are required to pay a user fee that could cost more than the radio itself. The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) already reduced the fee from $115 to $75 in September 1995.

The law does not provide for an effective date for elimination of the fee. The FCC is expecting to initiate a rulemaking process that will probably last six months to a year.

NEW CHARTER BOAT REEF FISH PERMIT — Charter vessels and head boats taking reef fish in federal waters are now required to have a new Charter/head boat reef fish permit. This regulation went into effect April 1, 1996.

Charter vessels and head boats also are currently required to have a charter/head boat coastal pelagics permit to take king mackerel, Spanish mackerel, cobia, cero, little tunny, dolphin or bluefish. The coastal pelagics permit has been required since 1987, but has not been strongly enforced.

The Coast Guard is now checking for this permit when inspecting charter and head boats.

Information and application forms are available from the Regulations and Permits Branch, NMFS, Southeast Regional Office, 9721 Executive Center Drive N., St. Petersburg, FL (zip code not included in press release) or phone (813) 570-5326. ## Summer youth programs

Boys can take courses in computer lifeguarding and swimming this summer at the University of Southern Mississippi. Children ages 3-15 can enjoy learning experiences in these areas offered by USM Continuing Education. Enrollment is limited and early registration is recommended. Courses include: Understanding Computers, 9:30-11:30 a.m., June 15-19. This five-part, $85 workshop is designed for youth ages 10-15 who have had limited or no exposure to computers. Students will learn about system components such as MS-DOS and Windows 3.1, plus an Internet introduction and application of spreadsheets and database management.

Golden Eagle Junior Lifeguard Program, 8-10 a.m., June 12 or July 15-19. This program is designed to introduce young lifeguards to lifeguarding techniques and will serve as a foundation for future training in lifeguarding and lifeguarding. Kids ages 11-14 can participate. All classes are held at USM's Walker Natatorium. Fee is $72.

The Youth Swim Program is designed to teach non-swimmers how to swim and to improve the swimming techniques of those who can swim. The one-week session, young students or first-time swimmers will learn basic water safety skills and swimming strokes. Experienced swimmers will progress to more advanced swimming levels.

The one-week courses will meet June 3-7, June 10-14, June 17-21, and June 24-28. The sessions for ages 3-5 will meet 8-9 a.m. and the sessions for ages 6-10 will meet 9-10 a.m. The fee is $35 for the first session and $25 for additional sessions for each session.

For more information or to register, call (601) 266-4186.

Fishing license requirements

A Mississippi driver's license is required for residency verification, in addition to a current boat registration, is now required to purchase a resident saltwater fishing license in Mississippi, according to the Department of Marine Resources (DMR).

Instead of a driver's license, a voter registration card, state tax return or homestead exemption may be used for residency verification.

All saltwater fishing licenses are now on sale at the DMR office at 152 Gateway Drive, Biloxi, and at Fisherman's Corner in Pascagoula.

Call DMR at 385-5860 for current fees for resident and non-resident licenses.

Tennis tournament draws state players

Tennis players from Mississippi and Louisiana are expected to create quite a racket competing in the Deposit Guaranty Cancer Tennis Tournament June 7-9 at Duncan Park in Natchez.

The annual tournament benefits both the Adams County unit of the American Cancer Society and the Natchez Community Tennis Association to fund park programs, improve park facilities and support USA junior programs.

This year Deposit Guaranty National Bank became the title sponsor of the tournament. Tournament chairman Noreen Pyron said the bank's sponsorship is a big boost to the tournament.

"We've never had a major sponsor, so we were tickled when Deposit Guaranty offered their support," Pyron said. "Besides helping us cover expenses, Deposit Guaranty is well-known around the state. Having Deposit Guaranty's name will add even more credibility to the event and help us raise more money so that we can do bigger, better things for the community."

Deposit Guaranty-Natchez president B.B. Hosch said the bank is proud to be affiliated with an event that does so much good.

"More than two-thirds of the players come from out of town to compete," Hosch said. "Therefore, in addition to benefitting the Cancer Society and funding park programs, the tournament also brings people together from across the state for some friendly competition and fun. This is a great event."

The Deposit Guaranty Cancer Tennis Tournament will include men's, women's and mixed divisions. Entry fee is $30 per person to compete in one division, or $50 to compete in two. Entry deadline is June 5.

Non-players can support the event by taking part in the related social activities. For more information, call (601) 446-6677.

Free greens fees

Looking for the ultimate Father's Day gift?

The American Lung Association of Mississippi has the answer — free greens fees with the 1996 Golf Privilege Card.

For only $25, the Golf Privilege Card (actually a 60-page booklet) will entitle your favorite golfer to play more than 600 golf courses throughout Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and Florida at free or reduced greens fees. The card is valid through December 31, 1996.

"Every time a golfer purchases 'The Lung Card,' he or she takes off against lung disease," said Robert Wills, president of the American Lung Association of Mississippi.

"At only $25, the Golf Privilege Card is the best golfing bargain in Mississippi," he added.

Wills said phone orders are welcomed. "Put your gift list together and call us at (800) 737-5453 or (601) 362-5453," he stated.

VISA and MasterCard are accepted.

Ladner challenges Schonewitz's streak

Billy Joe Schonewitz was faced with two challenges from the Ladner racing team Saturday night at Sun Coast Speedway.

He knew going into the feature race his Art's Automotive engine would have to be torn down to satisfy a protest lodged by the Ladner racing team. Mike Ladner also gave Schonewitz his stiffest challenge in a feature race this season as he held the lead at the midway point before they got together going into turn three.

A red flag had already come out due to another incident on the track, which resulted in a previous lap lineup for the restart. Ladner's car suffered damage and to be towed to the pits. This gave the lead over to Schonewitz on the restart.

Heat winner Mitchell Williams moved up to the second spot, followed by Randy Brownlee and Kent Davis as six of the 11-car starting field took the checkers. Cliff Darby won the second heat race for one of his best finishes in his rookie season in the sportsman division.

After the race, Art Overstreet dismantled the engine under the watchful eye of track officials and Paul Vanderley, a race engine expert. Ladner had asked to check the specifications of the engine. It was determined that the engine met all specs and was legal under late model sportsman rules.

Owen Kosbab won his first street stock feature race of the season as he went flag to flag for the win. Lonnie Scarbrough applied constant pressure from the start, but was unable to make a pass on Kosbab. Scarbrough also had his work cut out, holding off Mark Pritchett and the remainder of the 18-car field.

Bill Stewart started on the rear of the B feature and made short work of moving to front of the 13-car field. Ralph Nelson and B.J. Anderson followed Stewart to the checkers. Rodney Barber, Doug Thigpen and Floyd Stapleton each won earlier heat races.

Wallace Allen had a much easier time going flag to flag for his second pro stock win in a row. Rusty Cooper and Tommy Doswell gave chase but could not catch Allen as he moved to a comfortable lead after each restart on a caution. Heat wins went to Chet Morrison and Jeremy Broadus.

Kalif Sellier returned to victory lane after an absence of several weeks. Sellier had been sharing wins with the Allison brothers, Kenny and David, after he won several features at the start of the season.

David Allison crossed up in the early going of the 11-car feature, collecting Jimmy Necaice along with a couple of other cars. Allison and Necaice both sustained race-ending damage, ending Allison's bid to add to an earlier heat win.

Marus Jacob had one of his better outings this season as he held off Kenny Allison for the second spot.

Bubba Trotter won both heat and feature races in the rookie class. Trotter has accomplished this feat several times of late. Danny Beauchamp finished second in both races, while Robert Hopkins finished third in both races.

The ladies' race was won by Gwen Bruce, who moved quickly to the front of the field to take the checkers. Brandy Yarbrough and Angie Crawford rounded out the top three.

PRCC signs two Lady Tigers

Sports Care honors OLA's Scafide and Esher

Scafide participated in soccer and cross-country in 1995-96. She was named Most Valuable Player in soccer in 1994-95 and Most Improved in Cross-Country in 1992-93.

Esher, with a GPA of 3.4, was a member of the All-State team in cross-country 2A in 1994-95 (3rd individually) and 1995-96 (7th individually). She placed first in the 400-meter dash at the State 2A Track Meet in 1994-95.

Her school athletic awards include the Sportsmanship Award in cross-country and

Summer science camp

Students entering seventh through ninth grades can still register for the 32nd annual Summer Science Camp, sponsored by Mississippi Gulf Coast Community College's Perkinston campus.

Two sessions — June 10-14 and June 17-21 — are planned, where students will learn about everything from lasers to how to make slime.

Camp participants also cover areas such as astronomy, biology, ecology and other science-related areas through classroom discussions, laboratory work and field trips. This year, coordinator Dr. Brenda Nalepa is taking the groups on a trip to Horn Island.

During the camp, students will be able to enjoy activities such as a watermelon party at Red Creek, an end-of-camp party, swimming, tennis and other recreational facilities on campus.

Representatives from area schools, organizations and companies, including MGCCC JD campus, Georgia Pacific, Methodist Home Health Nursing, pharmacy department of the University of Mississippi, Wildlife Rehabilitation and Nature Preservation Society, and Stone County Schools, will speak to the students on topics ranging from environment to polymer science. Other speakers will include Nalepa; Theresa Roper and Vicki Lizana, both of Harrison County Schools; and Jennifer Fortenberry, Ocean Springs Schools.

The camp is co-sponsored by Georgia Pacific Leaf River Operation, with Dupont DeLisle, Pearl River Valley EPA and Simmons Contracting as contributors. Several Coast businesses also are sponsoring students attending.

Cost of the science camp is $175, which includes meals, tuition, residence hall accommodations, day/night supervision and the field trip. A $50 non-refundable deposit is required.

Payment, in cash or money order, for the balance is due on the day of registration. Students who live within five miles of Perkinston campus may commute for the camp and pay $135 to attend.

To register, call Nalepa at 928-6274 between 8 a.m. and 3 p.m., or 928-4526 between 3 and 9 p.m. Applications will be accepted until the camps are full.

Perkinston honors students

Mississippi Gulf Coast Community College students were recently honored at the 12th annual awards banquet held at the Perkinston campus.

Tyler Leigh Austin of Pass Christian was named to the Who's Who Among Students in American Junior/Community Colleges.

Charles Joseph Starita Jr., also of Pass Christian, was recognized with an Honors Award.

SLU graduates

Southeastern Louisiana University conferred 629 diplomas to graduates during the university's May 20 spring commencement.

Graduates from this area included Leslie Lynn Diamond of Bay St. Louis, who earned a bachelor degree in biological sciences.

Pepsi Students of the Month

St. Stanislaus March Pepsi Students of the Month are, from left, freshman Geoff Clausen, seventh grader Neil Favre, sophomore Olan Sutvej, junior Mark Modenbach, eighth grader Brandon Lewis and senior Ross Pitcairn.

PRCC summer registration

Registration and orientation for summer school at Pearl River Community College is set Monday, June 3, 8:30 a.m.

Orientation for all new students will be held in Moody Hall Auditorium with registration set for the M.R. White Coliseum.

"All students enrolling at PRCC for the first time should attend orientation to receive instructions for advisement and registration," said Dr. Becky Askew, director of recruitment.

Askew said PRCC president Ted Alexander will welcome students, and other administrators and counselors will answer questions regarding the admissions process. There is no fee for orientation.

Registration for first and second terms will be held at the same time. First term classes start Tuesday, June 4, and the second term is planned for Tuesday, July 2.

All students must provide a high school transcript, GED scores, or an official transcript from the last college attended. Askew said if transcripts are not on file, they should be hand delivered at orientation.

All academic and technical students must have an ACT test on file, and vocational studies must take the Test for Adult Basic Education (TABE). For information about test dates or registration, call (601) 795-1317.

Ricky Strong

Bay student honored

The United States Achievement Academy announced Ricky Strong has been named an All-American Scholar.

The USAA has established the All-American Scholar Award Program to offer deserved recognition to superior students who excel in academic disciplines.

The All-American Scholars must earn a 3.3 or higher grade point average. Only scholars selected by a school instructor, counselor or other qualified sponsor are accepted. These scholars are also eligible for other awards given by the USAA.

Strong attends Bay Middle School. He will appear in the All-American Scholar Yearbook, which is published nationally.

Strong is the son of Charles and Nancy Strong.

EYE CARE

by Allen J. Koskan, M.D.

WEIGHTY MATTERS

Those eyeglass wearers who are looking for comfort in their next pair of eyeglasses may want to take a careful look at the oval metal frames currently in fashion.

It may be more accurate to say this classic look is never really out of fashion. These frames suit most faces because they complement, rather than overpower, facial features.

On a more practical level, metal frames are sufficiently lightweight to be worn all day without causing discomfort or leaving red impressions on the bridge of the nose after they are removed.

Even people with moderate to severe myopic (nearsighted) conditions that leave them in need of strong prescriptions with the attendant thick (coke bottle) lenses can enjoy lightweight eyeglasses with the help of high-index lenses.

This lens technology allows for a significant reduction in lens thickness. With thinner plastic lenses in lightweight metal frames, nearly anyone can enjoy eyeglass comfort.

Oval metal frames complement most facial features. If you need glasses or are tired of your current frames, visit KOSKAN EYE CLINIC at Highway 90, Bay St. Louis, MS.

Regardless of your tastes, we'll help you select the frames that are right for you.

We offer the newest line of fashion frames from top designers at very competitive prices.

Call our office at 466-5201 to schedule an eye health exam. Our exams include measurement of visual acuity, testing of eye muscle movements, screening of peripheral visual fields and glaucoma and cataract testing. We treat dry eye syndrome and specialize in the treatment of medically and surgically related eye problems.

P.S. Indications of quality metal frames include: flex hinges, a smooth finish and soft nose pads.

Your child deserves to learn.

NOW REGISTERING

Whether gifted, hurting, or disadvantaged, your child deserves to learn.

There is a school where both gifted and at-risk students can get personal attention ... side by side in the same room ... and both will excel. No pressure, boredom or embarrassment for the student.

SOME PEOPLE WOULD CALL THIS A HANDFUL.

THAT'S WHY WE'RE HERE.

Many newborns, especially premature babies, have special needs that can only be met in the unique environment of Slidell Memorial's Level III Neonatal Intensive Care Unit. Some babies spend only a day or two here under the watchful eye of our neonatal nursing team. Other babies may spend several weeks in our unit, overcoming low birth weights, developing stronger lungs or recovering from other birth-related complications. In every case, a special family bonding occurs with our nurses here at Slidell Memorial, who not only nurture and love each baby, but also give strength and support to parents as well. Caring for our Level III NICU babies is a tremendous responsibility that requires a commitment to believing there is no job too big and a tenderness to understand there is no job too small.

Essay contest offers youths' views on health care

Local high school students were asked to give their suggestions on improvements in health care and community wellness in a recent essay contest sponsored by Hancock Medical Center in observance of National Hospital Week.

Bay High student Natalie Smith won a summer membership to Loicano's Health Club for her essay on the theme "Hospitals: Partners for a Healthy Community."

Other Bay High students who were recognized include Alicia Schulz, Maria Strauser, Holly Deuschle and Tirzah Lyons. All are students of English teacher Patricia Clayborn.

"...providing classes in health care is so important," wrote Smith. "These could include parenting classes, CPR and nutrition classes and care for the elderly and home-bound.... There is a need in the schools for professionals to visit and provide information on birth control, drug information and their side effects, and sexually transmitted diseases."

Schulz suggested "the hospital could offer free breast exams or self teaching tapes on the subject. There could be more health fairs offering blood glucose, cholesterol monitoring and EKGs at affordable rates...." She said the physical therapy department could offer workshops or articles on "promoting safety and preventing injury to oneself by using good body mechanics on the job or at home by teaching exercises to keep the body strong and in its top condition."

"Hancock Medical Center has clinics which teach about diets, nutrition and diabetes," wrote Strauser. "People who attend these clinics learn vital information that could save their lives." She also highlighted the importance of family-related classes, including childbirth preparation, sibling and breastfeeding classes, and mentioned the hospital's free childhood immunization program as important free programs.

"Our hospital could give classes and have clinics for people who are addicted to drugs and alcohol," suggested Deuschle. "This would help many people to live healthier lives."

Lyons would recommend an indoor fitness center with affordable rates at the hospital, where a staff dietitian could demonstrate healthy cooking tips.

"To spread information about preventative medicine, AIDS, physical fitness and drugs, hospitals should have publications that educate the community," she wrote. "To ensure that the public has easy access to these publications, they should be placed at gas stations and grocery stores throughout the community. Local businesses could financially support the publications through advertising."

Winners of an elementary school poster contest depicting the theme "Partners for a Healthy Community" were:

First grade — Lesley Stone's class, North Bay Elementary;

Second grade — First place, Diane Pagano's class, Gulfview; second place, Debbie Estapa's class, Gulfview; third place, Elizabeth Magee's class, student Morgan Busbee, North Bay Elementary.

Third grade — First place, Janet Herren's class, Gulfview; second place, Helene Doney's class, Gulfview.

First place winners will be treated to an ice cream party, while the other classes will receive cookies. Each participating school receives a first aid kit.

PRCC Child Tech lab school accredited

Pearl River Community College's Child Development Technology Laboratory School has been accredited by the National Association for Education of Young Children (NAEYC).

The national recognition has been achieved by only five percent of the early childhood programs nationwide — some 4,500 programs as of November 1995.

"This is tremendous recognition for Pearl River College and our Child Development Lab School," said Judy Prine, program director.

NAEYC accreditation is a rigorous, voluntary process where early childhood programs demonstrate that they consistently meet national standards of excellence. Child care centers, preschools, kindergartens, and before and after school programs are eligible to seek NAEYC accreditation.

Pearl River is one of 28 programs accredited in Mississippi.

rams accredited in Mississippi, and one of only 15 community college child care centers in the nation to receive the honor. Hinds Community College at Utica is the only other NAEYC-accredited community college in the state.

"The heart of NAEYC accreditation focuses on the child's experience," said Prine. "The process carefully considers all the aspects of the program, which includes health and safety, staffing, staff qualifications, administration and physical environment."

Prine said the greatest emphasis is on the children's relationships with the staff and how the program helps each child grow and learn — intellectually, physically, socially and emotionally.
